INTRODUCTION

The Adas Israel Cemetery documentation project of the Jewish Genealogy Society of Greater Washington and the Jewish Historical Society of Greater Washington was conducted by volunteers from both organizations. The project began as an effort to document the oldest graves in the cemetery. We had hoped to have the help of synagogue records but, as of the time we began our project, these records were "lost." Although there had been two earlier efforts to list those who had been buried in the cemetery through 1911 based on synagogue records, it was clear that many names were missing from these lists. The project was an attempt to document information actually contained on the gravestones themselves and to synthesize that information with the names and dates from the two earlier lists.

Volunteers spent several Sundays copying down information from the gravestones. The information was then entered into a simple database program on a home computer. As the project was nearing the final hours of completion, I called the synagogue to ask a question and was referred to Rabbi Stanley Rabinowitz who had retired shortly before our project had begun and was working on a history of Adas Israel Congregation. Not wanting to bother him with my petty question, I called him somewhat reluctantly. I needn't have worried. When I told him about the project and why I was calling, he was most enthusiastic and very helpful. He went on to tell me that the missing cemetery records had recently been found and agreed to xerox the material so that the official records could be compared to the information we had collected.

To make a long story short, the information from the cemetery records nearly doubled that which we had already compiled. Unfortunately, the information found at the synagogue was not complete. There are some missing years and there are some missing pages from the slim bound volume holding the records. However, we were able to confirm that the first burial was on June 7, 1870 of the stillborn twins of H. Hammersch. There are no official records between January 16, 1879 and August 12, 1895 and the volume ends with the burial of the Infant Applebaum on October 20, 1918. For various reasons, we decided to add whatever records we had collected for the year 1919. This index lists 382 individuals who died between June 1870 through 1919.

Rabbi Rabinowitz will be publishing a history of Adas Israel and its cemetery and I will leave to him the details of the founding of this important and second oldest congregation in Washington.

The synagogue has a very large map of the cemetery with the names of all those buried there. The map is in fragile shape and the plan is to redo it. It must be noted that there is no real system of organization in rows. The project team initially attempted to superimpose a system based on logic but this soon fell apart when it became clear that burials were not made in rows. The synagogue's cemetery map accurately reflects whatever organization exists. To the extent possible, we have tried to include all pertinent personal/genealogical information contained on gravestones. The official records are organized by the order of burial and have been assigned what was termed "headboard" numbers. These numbers are not meaningful for anything but facilitating access to the original record book.

The official synagogue records for burials provided very little information about the individuals (name, age, dates of death and burial) until July 26, 1899 when the District of Columbia "Health Officer" began requiring permits for burials. Obtaining a permit required supplying information about the cause and place of death. Official records included the age of the person at death rather than the birth date. If the gravestone included the date of birth, we used that date; otherwise, the age is given, if known. In the case of infants who died unnamed, the official cemetery records generally gave the name of the father and, sometime, the mother. Otherwise, names of parents and spouses were not listed. The terminology and spelling of the causes of death generally reflect the way they are stated in the official records. The spelling of some surnames, such as Levy and Levi or Schlossberg and Schlosberg, have been corrected only when there was evidence that one spelling was more commonly used by a particular family.

I wish to thank the following individuals for their assistance in this project. First and foremost, we owe a large debt of gratitude to Rabbi Stanley Rabinowitz, Rabbi Emeritus of Adas Israel who ensured that this project had access to the best information available. Robert "Sonny" Silverman, a member of JGSGW, was the president of the Jewish Historical Society when this project was conceived and he and the, then, Executive Director of JHSGW, Hadassah Thursz, were instrumental in making this a joint effort. Harold Rhode, past president of JGSGW, was the project's primary translator. Rabbi Jeffrey Wohlberg, spiritual leader of Adas Israel, arranged for additional translation assistance from Abraham Sirken. Other members of the team included Diane Goldman, Helene Siegel, Faith Klein, Abby Blankman, and Ben Okner. I compiled the index and am fully responsible for all errors.

Questions about this project may be addressed to me though JGSGW, P.O. Box 412, Vienna, VA 22183-0412.

Key To Reading This Index

The following 382 individuals were entered into the database format below. There were very few entries for some of the items in the format and for some deceased individuals, we had little more than a name so that many entries are very brief. Because in the Jewish tradition, only the name of the father appears on the gravestone, there may be some confusion regarding whether the name appearing below that of a deceased female refers to a parent or spouse when only a single male name is listed. When the deceased female was an adult, we tried to make clear which entry was a father and which a spouse.

Name of deceased
Parents names
Spouse name
Birth date/Hebrew birth date/birthplace
Death date/Hebrew death date/place of death
Cause of death

Comments

Parents' names were often taken from the gravestones and were, therefore, in Hebrew. The word "ben" means son in Hebrew and the word "bat" means daughter.

The place of death was generally the address where the death occurred, but occasionally, both a hospital and a home address were listed. In that case, we used the home address since it is more relevant genealogically.

Determining the cause of death was a challenge since the terminology for some conditions has changed and the spelling used by the people recording the deaths in the cemetery book was probably "creative." The headstone number has no significance except that it refers back to the order of the way deaths were recorded by the synagogue from number 1 to 399. The original record can be seen by contacting Rabbi Stanley Rabinowitz at Adas Israel.

Comments was used to capture information written on the gravestone as well as comments made by a volunteer researcher about the condition of a gravestone or about a burial taking place some months after the death occurred.
