Foreword

The contents of this book by the late Richard D. Barnett are a direct consequence of the great efforts of the author. The book is not only a monument to those who died in a far off land: it is the book of those buried in sand, whose life stories were engraved in a few lines in Hebrew and other languages, lives which encompassed enterprise and daring as befits the descendants of Conversos and Jews. They died and were buried as Jews.

The book is unique in another way, linking together thought and action. It began with the transcription of Christian Jamaican tombstones by D.H. Lawrence-Archer in the Nineteenth Century, work which was continued by Philip Wright (1910–1975), who then proceeded to record all Jewish tombstones in Jamaica. He in fact doubled or trebled the number of inscriptions previously discovered. It is a marvel that these tombstones survived in an area notorious for its devastating tropical storms. However, the verification of the transcription, their completion and editing are the work of Richard David Barnett (1909–1986).

Centuries of life are revealed in the terse inscriptions, most engraved by local non-Jewish masons. The brief data they present give the story of Jewish settlement in this Caribbean island at the gateway to the New World. It is the story of brave entrepreneurs who sought to build a fresh life for themselves and their people and to create a bridge between the Old World and the New. The stones are sometimes the only historical source recording the existence of the individuals and their achievements. For this reason these inscriptions are important as a unique historical source that may be added to other sources for Jewish history.

Also instrumental in the publication of this volume were John Curtis, Barnett's colleague in the British Museum, and his wife Barbara J. Barnett. Oron Joffe checked the manuscript and recopied it. The Ben-Zvi Institute took upon itself to publish this important volume. All of these saw the book to its completion not only out of love and admiration for the writer but also in recognition of its contents.

The volume is also a monument to the breadth of Barnett's interests. He held two crowns: one as an archaeologist who participated in excavations in the Near East and Greece and served as keeper of Western Asiatic Antiquities in the British Museum; the other as a scholar of the history of English Jewry and the Spanish-Portuguese Diaspora after the Expulsion. In both these realms he reconstructed the past.

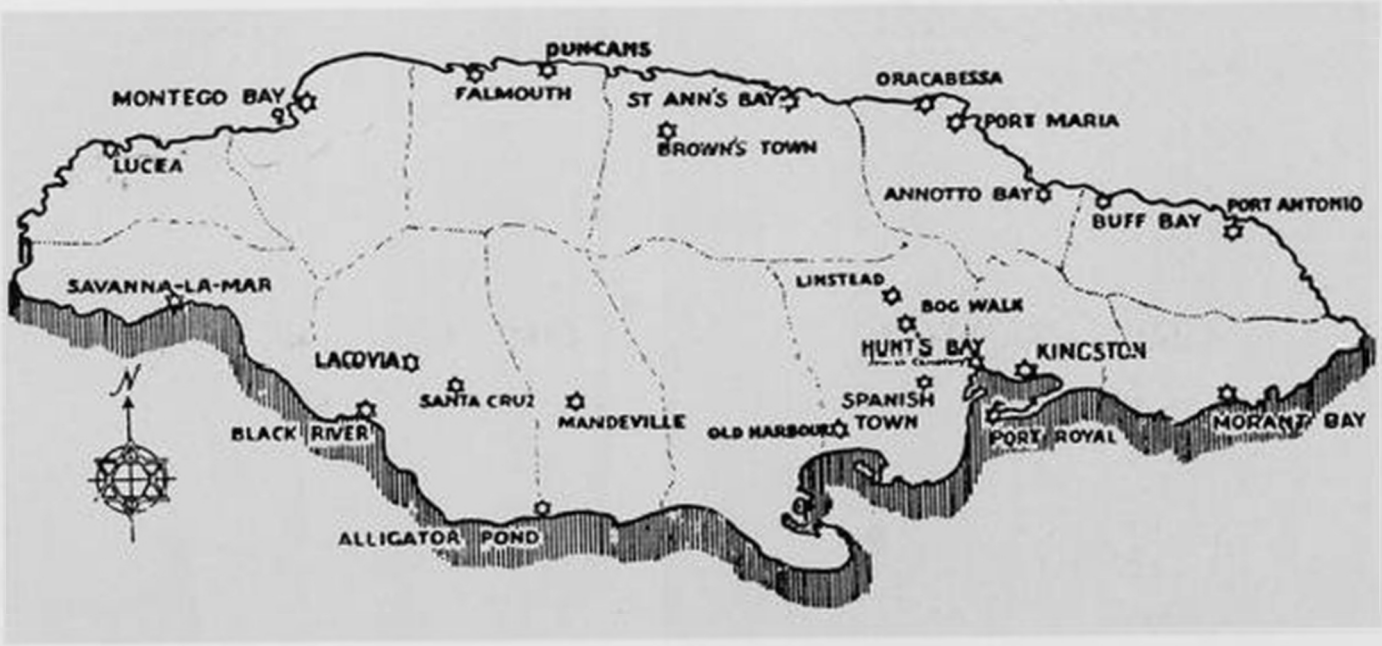

Barnett was always interested in inscriptions whether on clay or stone, and he used the evidence from them to good effect in his many books, such as this one, giving immortality to those whose lives are thus preserved.

The memory of Richard David Barnett as a man, an archaeologist, a scholar and a historian is preserved in the hearts of his friends and admirers. Moreover, it will live on in his works, by which he contributed to the preservation of the history of his people in his characteristic manner — with humility.

May his memory be blessed. And may all those who took part in publishing this book be blessed as well.

The History of this Project

This publication brings to fruition an undertaking initiated by Philip Wright (1910-1975), an Englishman born in Middlesex who read Classics at Oxford. His father's wide travels on business in the Far East probably drew him to Oriental studies. From the mid-thirties he was Assistant Keeper of the Indian Collection at the Victoria and Albert Museum in London . In 1940 he went as a volunteer to Western China, liaising between the Chinese Army Medical Services and the Allied Red Cross. There he met and married Adele Cohen, a physician from a Jewish family in the United States. Her subsequent work took them to Jamaica where Philip Wright taught in a Kingston High School for nine years. His growing fascination with the island's history led him to join the staff of the Institute of Jamaica as a research librarian in 1958. He returned to England with his wife and son in 1961 and was the Society of Antiquities' head librarian for two years. He retired in order to continue his work on Jamaica projects. The results of these activities are demonstrated by the books he published,[1] completed at last with the appearance of this volume, and his many articles in historical journals.

Though Jews played a significant role in the economic and social development of Jamaica a definitive history has yet to be written. In 1969 Simeon J. Maslin made an earnest plea in the American Jewish History Quarterly for major efforts to be made to preserve and document extant Caribbean monuments and offered practical plans for doing so.[2] He lamented the poor state of Jamaica cemeteries, the absence of adequate research on early synagogues and the need for a competent and complete study of the Jews of Jamaica, one of the oldest Jewish communities in the western hemisphere.

Records of Jewish communities in Jamaica are incomplete; natural disasters and several major fires have left none dated earlier than 1788, hence the importance of preserving these inscriptions. Wright persuaded the Institute of Jamaica to sponsor the project and was much encouraged by a donation from Aaron Matalon, a leading member of the present Kingston congregation, the only community that remains today.

Philip Wright's purpose was to publish a complete record of all legible and recorded Jamaican tombstone inscriptions, both Christian and Jewish, up to 1880 when registration of births, marriages and deaths was made mandatory. His corpus of 3800 Christian epitaphs appeared in 1966.[1] In the preface he mentions that those from Jewish cemeteries were to be published separately, but with his customary modesty avoids mentioning his own role in the project. He explored the fourteen parishes of the island[2] and found in eleven of them stones with still partially legible inscriptions, the oldest dated 1672. He had photographed those containing Hebrew because he did not know the language and copied all the rest. To these he added all available information on Jewish deaths till 1880, incorporating lists (unsigned) of burials, located in the archives of the National Library of Jamaica and a corrected version of Andrade's selection which he noted had contained none of the Hebrew epitaphs.[3] He found the graveyards "pretty uniformly derelict" by 1960 and many stones read by Andrade prior to 1941 were no longer legible.

In 1960 Wright sought an editor to work on his collection of Jewish inscriptions and publish them. Paul White, another enthusiast both for Jamaica and Jewish history[4] referred him to Richard Barnett. The gregarious Richard and reserved Philip collaborated well — several stages of their lives ran parallel.

Richard D. Barnett (1909-1986) was also born in Middlesex. The influence of his scholarly father, Lionel D. Barnett, led him to read Classics at Cambridge. The elder Barnett was Keeper of Oriental Books and Manuscripts at the British Museum 1906-1936. He served as archivist to the Spanish and Portuguese Community in London and although of purely Ashkenazi descent was made a member, a rare honour his son inherited! Richard, too, spent his professional career in the British Museum where he was Keeper of Western Asiatic Antiquities from 1955 to 1974. His published work in archaeology documents the scope of his knowledge and achievements,[5] but much of his private time was devoted to Anglo-Jewish and particularly Sephardi history as is evident from the list of his publications on Judaica.[6]

Richard succeeded his father as archivist to the Sephardi community and was active in many related spheres. In 1956 he organised the Anglo-Jewish Art and History Exhibition at the Victoria and Albert Museum commemorating the tercentenary of the Jewish resettlement in England. In 1959 he was elected president of the Jewish Historical Society of England. That same year witnessed one of the first indications of official recognition by Spain of its Jewish heritage — an exhibition of Sephardi bibliography organised by Richard Barnett in the Spanish National Library; and in 1962 he gave the opening address at the first Symposium of Jewish Studies in Madrid. In his last years he devoted much effort to the preparation for publication of Richard Barnett recognised the importance of Philip Wright's Jamaican material and agreed to plan its publication. He worked in spare hours on transcribing the photographed epitaphs, a task that proved more time consuming than anticipated, and sought a publisher and sponsorship but without success. After retirement from the British Museum in 1973 he made fresh efforts to achieve publication. With Aubrey Newman, present Professor of History, Leicester University, and John Pringle who had extensive knowledge of the Jamaican scene, he established the Jamaican Jewish History Committee. Its purpose was to fill the long recognised gap in Jewish annals by producing a study of Jamaican Jewish History with Philip Wright's inscriptions as a first stage.

In 1984 Richard arranged for a full revision of his transcriptions. Carol Mendelson made a fresh reading and careful copy of the Hebrew, and Alexandra Trone, an excellent philologist, thoroughly checked all the rest, wrestling too with incongruities in dating. This work was financed by contributions from John Pringle and another anonymous donor. Meanwhile, Richard had recognised the potential of "Desk Top Publishing" and was seeking someone able to handle the task at the time of his death in 1986. In 1987 Oron Yoffe offered to the executors his expertise in philology and Information Technology and was invited to London to prepare the material for publication. He made another careful reading of the inscriptions from the photographs and worked intensively on clarifying the dates. With the assistance of Alexandra Trone, Oron has ensured that the final transcription is as faithful a copy as possible of the original material — he has even succeeded in reproducing in print typographical variations and curiosities made by the stonemasons — he designed the format for the book, selected illustrations and has produced indices and notes to aid the reader.

At last, in 1991, Professor Michel Abitbol, Chairman of the Ben Zvi Institute, agreed to publish the inscriptions on the recommendations of Professors Haim Beinart and Joseph Kaplan, specialists in Judeo-Spanish History at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem. The contents and appearance of this book have gained enormously from the skills of the Ben Zvi Institute's Academic Secretary, Michael Glatzer, and the extensive knowledge and involvement of the proof reader Shimon Kumer, particularly his understanding of the dates. Since Richard's death his Literary Executor, Dr John Curtis, the present Keeper of Western Asiatic Antiquities at the British Museum, has given valuable help and advice at every stage.

The help of others should also be acknowledged: Paul White and Hugh Morrison accompanied Philip on many expeditions searching for forgotten Jewish cemeteries throughout Jamaica. Ernest de Souza clarified Philip's descriptions and locations of the graveyards and contributed a sketch map of the island by his father. Jack Tyndale Biscoe allowed use of his aerial picture of Hunt's Bay (page xi). Max Wright provided biographical notes on his father. John Aarons, Director of the National Library in Kingston, and Geoffrey Pinto answered queries, but no one has been able to name Philip's able photographer. His photographs are now kept in the Library of the Ben Zvi Institute, Jerusalem.

Further funds were needed to achieve publication. Jamaican friends, Mr Tony Hart and Mrs Valerie Facey, Director of the Mill Press in Kingston, saw a draft and initiated a new appeal on the island. Both made generous contributions together with Mrs Blanche Blackwell, Mr Marvin Goodman, Mr and Mrs Geoffrey Pinto, Mr John Pringle, Mr Ernest Henriques de Souza and an anonymous donor. Just over $5,000 was raised. The officers and secretary of the Jewish Historical Society of England kindly agreed to administer the funds.

Thanks to the donors and all who contributed their expertise during the past thirty years this book is now in your hands.

Introduction

This collection of tombstone inscriptions from Jewish burial grounds in Jamaica spans a period of about two centuries, from 1663 to 1880. The Jewish community of Jamaica can trace a continuous existence from the earliest years of English colonization, which began with the capture of the island in 1655, until the present time. That there were Marranos living in Spanish Jamaica before the arrival of the English has often been stated. Such, perhaps, were the 'divers Portugales' who in 1643 offered to show an English raider where the Spanish treasure was hidden, and possibly the 'Don Acosta, a Portuguise' who twelve years later helped to negotiate the Spanish capitulation to General Venables.[1] In 1654 there were, temporarily at least, some Jewish refugees from Dutch Brazil in the island.[2]

The interest of Simon de Caceres in Cromwell's 'Western Design' is well established. De Caceres had property in Barbados, and perhaps accompanied Venables' invasion force to Jamaica; in his memorandum on 'Things wanting in Jamaica' written in 1655, he mentions having been there himself.[3] But the earliest specific reference to a Jew residing in Jamaica under English rule seems to be in a petition of 1661 by Jacob Joshua Bueno Henriques, who asked for permission to go the island and work a copper mine, stating that he had lived in Punta de Cagoe (Port Royal) during 1658 and 1659,[4] official policy favoured the admission of Jews to Jamaica, as of any settlers likely to promote the commerce of the infant colony. In December 1670 the Governor, Sir Thomas Lynch was instructed to 'give all possible encouragement to persons of different opinions in religion'.[5] When the English merchants of Port Royal protested against unfair and allegedly illegal competition form the Jews, Lynch asserted that all but sixteen of the Jews in Jamaica had acquired denization papers entitling them to engage in retail trade, and that 'the King cannot have more profitable subjects than they and the Hollanders.'[6]

Between 1665 and 1700, 93 persons with Jewish names are recorded as having taken out patents of naturalization and/or patents of land.[7] In 1703 the Jewish community, according to their own statement, numbered 'not above 80 families', and in the 1730s they were variously estimated at between 700 and 900 persons. In 1740 an Act of Parliament enabled aliens who had been resident in any of the colonies for seven years to acquire naturalization easily and cheaply, and within the following decade the authorities in Jamaica returned the names of 152 Jews who had taken advantage of the Act.

At first the Jews were concentrated in Port Royal, but after the destruction of much of that town by the earthquake of 1692 many of the survivors migrated across the harbour to the new city site of Kingston, which supplanted Port Royal as the commercial capital. From the early eighteenth century onwards, the great majority of the Jews in Jamaica were retail traders in Kingston. There was a smaller congregation at Spanish Town, the seat of the colonial government, where a synagogue was consecrated in 1704; in the second half of the century, if not earlier, small numbers of Jewish merchants were to be found in most of the small seaport towns. Jewish planters were placed at a disadvantage by various restrictions, but there were a few plantation owners. Edward Long, in his History of Jamaica (1774), said of the Jews generally: 'They traffic among the negroes chiefly in saltfish, butter, and a sort of cheap pedlary wares, made by their brethren in England. But among the chief men are several very opulent planters, and capital merchants, who are connected with the great houses in the city of London.' One of the latter at a somewhat later date was that elusive figure, Alexandre Lindo, who during the Napoleonic Wars (or rather during the Peace of Amiens) acted as agent to the French forces sent to recapture St. Domingue (Haiti) and was supposed to have advanced them supplies to the value of £260,000.

Although reckoned among the white population, until 1831 the Jews, like the 'free people of colour', were subject to civil and political disabilities. They were debarred from voting in elections, and from employment in any but the lowest ranks of government office. They were not, however, exempt from militia service; in 1802, three out of the twelve companies in the Kingston infantry regiment were composed of Jews. The concession of full citizenship to both Jews and free coloured in the early 1830s was due principally to the plantocracy's need to conciliate both these classes to the colonial establishment at a time when it was on the defensive against the abolitionists. Among the free coloured themselves there were, of course, persons of Jewish name and descent. In the widespread miscegenation during slavery (and after) the Jews must certainly have taken some part, even if much less, in proportion, than Gentile whites. Writing a few years after the Emancipation, a Baptist missionary remarked on the number of men of substance who had recently married the (coloured) mothers of their families, and added: 'Amongst these it must be confessed that the Jews furnish the most numerous and respectable examples. Among them marriages with persons of their own nation have always been common...'[1]

From the time of enfranchisement onward, Jews were to play a part in public life out of proportion to their numbers. Between 1835 and 1866, when representative government was replaced by the Crown Colony system, twenty-nine were elected members of the legislative Assembly; in 1866, when that not very estimable body voted itself out of existence, 13 of its 47 members were Jewish. Before the end of the century, several Jews had held the position of Custos or chief magistrate and Crown representative of a parish (equivalent to an English county rather than parish). These were designated in their epitaphs as 'the Hon.'. At the same time, the smaller communities tended to dwindle or disappear. In some cases, assimilation into the colonial establishment was completed by abandonment of Jewish religion. But a more potent cause of the decrease was probably the commercial stagnation which followed the abolition of slavery. Outside of Kingston there were synagogues only in Spanish Town and Montego Bay, and by the end of the century both of these had virtually ceased to function. In the earlier and the most recent censuses of population there is no classification by religion, but from 1881 to 1944 the figures show a progressive decrease in the number of persons registered as Jews, from 2535 in 1881 to 600 in 1944. Some notes on the individual congregations and their burial grounds are included with the text of the inscriptions.

The history of the Jews in Jamaica has yet to be written. The only book hitherto devoted to the subject, Jacob Andrade's Record of the Jews in Jamaica (Kingston 1940), is a valuable compendium of information, but not a history. No communal records before the year 1788 have survived, and the tombstone inscriptions provide one of the few sources of information about the earlier period.

In 1961 the Institute of Jamaica sponsored the photographing of all legible epitaphs in the earliest Jewish cemetery, at Hunt's Bay near Kingston, and this was extended to a selection of the tombs (viz. those having Hebrew inscriptions) in the older burial grounds in Kingston itself and in Spanish Town. At the same time, epitaphs not photographed were transcribed, from these and the other remaining cemeteries throughout the island. A number of inscriptions no longer to be seen in 1961 are reprinted from the partial record given in Andrade's book or supplied from transcripts filed in the West India Reference Library of the Institute of Jamaica.[1] The aim has been to record all epitaphs dated between 1672 (the earliest to survive) and about 1880 with a few exceptions, when the compulsory civil registration of births, marriages and deaths was introduced. Most of the epitaphs written in English only are given in abbreviated and standardized form. Where possible the inscriptions have been checked against burial registers, but this applies only to the later ones, since all records of the Sephardi synagogue before 1809 were destroyed in a fire in 1882, and those of the Ashkenazi synagogue begin only in 1788.

Notes by the Editor

This book is a compilation of records relating to the Jews of Jamaica. The reader should be aware of the different types of sources that were used as this affects the appearance and the quality of the material. Using the technology available at the time, Richard Barnett prepared his manuscript on a typewriter, omitting by necessity many graphic features on the original stones. Only about four hundred and thirty photographs of the original stones survived, and these were all re-deciphered and typeset in as close an approximation to the original as possible.[1] The remaining material was copied from RDB's typewritten manuscript and does not therefore represent the original layout and style as faithfully. Notes on additional sources for the text are provided with the descriptions of the different cemeteries.

We have taken every effort to distinguish clearly that which is a mere reproduction of the original text from that which is questionable or surmised. In particular, reconstructions based on context are placed in {curly brackets} whereas those based on visible remains are reconstructed in [square brackets]. Overall, we have avoided conjecture in all but the most obvious or certain cases as so as not to prejudice the reader, whose reconstructions are as valid as our own.

In addition to the inscriptions themselves, summaries are offered in the form of editorial headings and indices. The editorial headings, given before each inscription, describe features of the inscription or stone and summarise biographical and other information in a standardised form. Dates are always given according to the Gregorian Calendar and the spelling of names is standardised where necessary. While we hope that these headings will prove useful to historians and genealogists alike, the reader should bear in mind that they represent editorial choice and that the text of the inscription itself may offer additional or conflicting information.

A full concordance of names and dates is provided to aid the reader in locating persons by any part of their name as well as assisting in constructing genealogical trees. Philologists, of course, will also find material of interest in the list. An index of dates is provided as is also a list of inscriptions containing Hebrew, Spanish and Portuguese inscriptions. The reader should note that these were compiled on the basis of the editorial headings and, on occasion, may therefore appear to differ in detail from the body of the inscriptions.

Dates

In inscription headings and indices, dates are always given in Gregorian form, having been converted from Julian or Hebrew dates where required. Wherever possible, dates were verified by comparing the Hebrew and civil dates. Inscriptions bearing conflicting dates were indicated by a * in the inscription heading, as well as being listed separately in the index of dates. The total number of such inscriptions is forty nine. Most of these diverge by a single day, or by about nine to eleven days, and this, it will be shown, is significant.

When the first Jews arrived in Jamaica in the 1660s, two civil calendars were in use there. The 'New Style' Gregorian calendar had been instituted by the Spanish, and the older Julian calendar was then reintroduced to the island by the British and retained until 3 September 1752, when Britain too changed over to the Gregorian system. The major difference between the calendars is in the average length of the year. The Julian calendar is slightly longer than the astronomical calendar. The Gregorian calendar corrects this by omitting a leap day every 400 years. When the calendar was first instituted in 1582 the difference was 10 days (i.e. the older 1 January was declared to be the 11th). By 1752, the difference had grown to 11 days. In addition, the civil year was declared to start on 1 January, rather than 25 March as previously.

During this period, dates were often marked SN ("Stylo Nuevo") etc, or presented in dual form, such as "EN 31 DE DIZIEMBRE 1683" (inscription 3). Dates between 1 January and 25 March were commonly written with both old- and new-style years, such as "13 henero 173½" (inscription 26).

Conversion between civil dates and the Hebrew calendar, which many Jews continued to use for most daily affairs, is not entirely straightforward. While the civil calendar is essentially solar, the Hebrew one is based on the Metonic system, so conversion between the two relies on the use of complex tables. Moreover, in the Jewish tradition, the new day begins at sunset, while the civil calendar starts each day from midnight. In addition, the civil calendar starts each day at midnight while in Jewish tradition each new day starts at sunset.

The conversion of dates for events occuring in the evening then, needs to compensate for this by subtracting a day from the civil date or adding one to the Hebrew date.

It is not surprising then that this resulted in some confusion in the conversion of dates by the Jews of Jamaica and and most of the errors can be explained as cases of hyper- or under-correction. On the whole, the Jewish dates appear to be more reliable. This is established both through external corroboration (e.g. day of week) and because they often appear more than once in the inscription.[1] We have therefore preferred Hebrew dates over the civil ones in cases of conflict except where there was a specific reason to prefer the Julian or Gregorian date as in inscriptions 235, 260, 697, 1069 and 1117.

Language and stonework

The main inscription in the stones is usually in Spanish or Portuguese, some text in English is present in most inscriptions, and Hebrew can be found in about half the stones. The stonework is usually of a high standard, the stones are carefully dressed and well carved. The content of the inscriptions too reflects the care and thought invested in the stones. While, unsurprisingly, the text relies heavily on the traditional, fixed formulae, most inscriptions offer unique combinations of language, form and selective personal history. Biblical citations containing the name of the deceased or alluding to it are often included and poems in different languages sometimes add unique dimension to the memory of the deceased. Thus, while we find the person buried under stone no. 126 was Rebecca Aguilar, wife of Abraham, who died aged 31, it is only when we read the quotation from Genesis 32:2 רבות בנות עשו חיל ואת עלית על כלנה that we begin to feel the human side, and it is in the poem that we get a sense of the person and her history:

1 Exceptionally, inscription 1131 cites the civil dates twice. However, the dates quoted are different!

Here rests a Woman good without pretence
Blefsd with plain reason & with sober ſenſe
No Conquests ſhe but oer her self desird
No arts Essayd but not to be admird
Passion and Pride were to her ſoul unknown
Convincd that Virtue only was her own
So unaffected so composd a Mind
So firm yet soft so strong yet so refind
Heaven as its purest Gold by Tortures tried
The Soul ſustaind it but the Woman died

Sometimes the text, while unremarkable in style, tells of significant facts, as in inscription 1080, which informs us that Jacob Israel Henriques died at the age of 120, or inscription 24 which informs us that the person buried, Samuel de Lucena, was murdered.

In contrast with the great efforts made in the composition of the inscriptions and the carving of the stones, the poor orthography is shocking. Word breaks occur in the wrong places and erroneous spelling which cannot reflect true phonetic variants is commonplace. In the border of 175, for example, we find"THE 4TH OE AUGUST ". Inscription 190 states "Do bemaventuado", ommitting the necessary r and in the Portuguese text of inscription 205, the surname "Furtado" is spelled the Spanish way, while it is spelled "Feurtado" in the English border of the same stone!

There are countless cases like these and, at first sight , they leave the impression of carelessness. This may be a reflection of work practices at the time. The stonemasons, who were not Jewish and certainly did not know all the languages used in the inscriptions, had to copy the text blindly from a sample written for them on paper. Once the text was carved in stone it was difficult, if not impossible, to correct it. In some cases, this practice may be echoed in the stones, as in inscription 2, where מכ may be a correction engraved onto the stone itself or perhaps the blind copying of a note which already included the insertion. A clearer example yet is found in the word edade in inscription 7, where the stone mason had actually copied the insertion sign as well as the extra letter. This is probably also the cause for the high number of substitution of similar looking letters in Hebrew, such as ה and ח, or ו and ז.

There is also some evidence for the hybridisation of Judeo Spanish and Portuguese. The peculiar form "Muller" in inscription 1073 is the Portuguese "Mulher" spelled phonetically in Spanish, within a Spanish inscription! Inscription 1122, though in Portuguese, is quite difficult to recognise as such. Some phenomena, though, defy classification. In inscriptions 1085 and 1088 for example, the name Quixano is spelled with a small q while all other names start with a capital letter!

Genealogy

The genealogical information in this book has not yet been analysed. However, the indices provided should ease the arduous task of crossreferencing and matching. It is easy to see for example, despite the poor state of preservation of inscription 14, that the subject is Rachel Gill, the daughter of Jacob Fernandes Gill of inscription 13. It is fair to assume that with some extra work the relationship between these two people and Rachel Fernandes Xill fifty years later (inscription 7) may also be established. Likewise, a quick look under "Silvera" in the index of names exposes the Attias Silvera family tree and reveals the lacunae the genealogist would have to try to overcome.

Plate I
A simple monolingual inscription from 1676 (inscription 11)

Plate II
A typical multilingual inscription (inscription 177). The semi-circular line along the top quotes a biblical verse relating to the deceased person's forename.

Plate III
An ornate multilingual inscription, incorporating a poem in Hebrew into the star of David (inscription 178).

Plate IV
An inscription in Portuguese with two Hebrew words (inscription 180). The layout of the inscription is the result

Plate V

A highly decorated stone erected for the Parnas of the Kingston parish who died in 1722 (inscription 230). Tombstone 1083 from Spanish Town and two years older, is extremely similar to it, lacking only the English text around the border.

Plate VI

A highly decorated trilingual inscription from Spanish Town (inscription 279). The medallions at the top depict angels holding palm branches and the encircled image at the bottom shows a hand extending from a cloud and felling a tree.

Plate VII
A tombstone for a young child (inscription 1035). The medallion depicts an angel holding a trumpet.

Plate VIII
A tombstone for a young woman who died without having children (inscription 1087). Note the use of Latin around the motif.

INSCRIPTIONS

HUNT'S BAY — PARISH OF ST ANDREWS

Hunt's Bay is a large indentation in the northern shore of Kingston harbour. The burial ground established by the Jews of Port Royal lies within a hundred yards of the sea, immediately north of the Jamaica Government Railway line which skirts the head of the bay. The site, reached by a lane from the Kingston-Spanish Town road, is about three miles north-west of the centre of Kingston and four miles across the water from Port Royal, at the mouth of the harbour. The surrounding country is 'bush', uncultivated land covered with low scrub. Abutting the cemetery on the east is a squatters' village, an outlier of the shanty-town slums of western Kingston. To the west, where a small creek meanders to the bay, is a belt of swamp.

In 1937 the long-disused burial ground was salvaged through the efforts of the Rev. Henry Silverman, then Rabbi of the United Congregation. When first seen by the Rabbi, the ground was > "... practically hidden by an undergrowth of well-nigh impenetrable tropical bush and was in a most deplorable condition. Funds were raised for the purpose of fencing the cemetery and repairing those tombstones which had fallen into decay. A committee... appealed to the public, and men of every denomination contributed liberally to the restoration fund, recognizing the great historical value attached to the last resting place of these sturdy pioneers. The land was cleared; broken tombstones were repaired; and cement slabs were placed over the graves from which stones had been removed, for vandalism, during the long period of neglect, had been rife ..."

A reconsecration service on 15 March 1938 was attended by Sir Edward Denham, Governor of the colony. The Rabbi's initiative had saved the cemetery from obliteration, but the problem of keeping it fenced and in good order has not been overcome. An aerial view from the south-west taken in 1963 (illus. 3) shows the deterioration at that date, when the posts in the foreground were all that remained of the enclosure.

The land was conveyed to the Jewish congregation in 1726 but had been in use as a burial ground for many years before that. Annexed to the record of the conveyance, dated 13 December 1726 - from John Maverly and Martha his wife of the parish of St Andrew to Daniel Carvalho and Jacob Gonsales of the parish of Port Royal for the consideration of £85 Jamaica currency (about £60 sterling) - is a copy of the surveyor's sketch plan with the following note:

> The above diagram represents the forms, dimensions, quantity and bounds of four acres, three roods and thirty-seven perches of land situated near or at Hunt's Bay in the parish of Andrew, belonging to and used by them as a place of interment of their dead: - 3 acres 2 roods and 5 perches is already fenced in, as the Platt above plainly showeth, the road from the sea is 30 feet wide. The small black points show the tombs of several who are there buried, viz. A, the tomb of Rachel Touro; B, that of Jacob Alverus; C, that of da Costa Alvarengo; D, that of Jacob Fernando Gill; all which I have performed and done accordingly as the same hath been shown to me by Mr Moses Gutteris, merchant, in Kingston this 26th day of October, Anno Dom. 1724 (Sgd.) Nicholas Holst, surveyor

The ground was subsequently enlarged. Judith Baruh Alvares (see no. 53) in her will dated 12 Sept. 1732 left £100 Jamaica currency 'for making a convenient causeway or walk from the usual place of landing of corpse of the parish of St Andrew to the burial place of the Jewish nation in the said parish well fenced on either side with penguin [a prickly plant] in order to the more commodious carrying my own and other corpse to the grave, and for the better accommodation of the people of the Jewish nation who shall accompany my corpse to the grave.' Annexed to a deed dated 30 December 1736 is a surveyor's plan and note (plate) recording the conveyance to the Jews of '17 perches of land being 30 ft wide designed for a path to carry their dead up from the water-side unto the burying place' (No. 2 on the plan) and also the lease by Maverly and his wife of an additional three acres (No. 4 on the plan) in exchange for the strip marked No. 3 (part of the original purchase) and a payment of £80.

Of the whole area purchased, the surviving tombs occupy only about one acre, corresponding to the enclosed rectangle containing the lettered tombs in the 1724 surveyor's sketch; his tombs A,B,C, and D correspond to those respectively numbered 114, 30, 36, and 12 in our diagram. Of 350 tombs in the 1961, 164 were found to have legible or partly legible inscriptions, and of those clearly dated the earliest was 1672 and the latest 1819. 49 inscriptions are dated in the period 1672 - 1700, 73 in the period 1700-1750, and 17 in the period 1750-1787; after 1787 there are only two, dated 1811(?) and 1819 (nos.111, 110).

In the absence of a burial register, we cannot say when the first interment at Hunt's Bay took place. The Jews had a synagogue in Port Royal, whose collapse in the 1692 earthquake was witnessed by the Anglican rector of the parish: 'I turned into ye Jewe's street in order to get home', he related, 'when their synagogue fell by my side.' But it seems unlikely that burials took place in the town, which was crowded on to the tip of a narrow, low-lying ridge of limestone and coral (in 1655, and again after the earthquake, it was an island). Possibly the Jews used Hunt's Bay from the first. But if there were tombstones dated earlier than 1672 which have disappeared, they were probably very few. Dr I.S. Emmanuel, in his study of the cemetery at Curaçao,[1] notes the absence of any tombs of persons who died during the first sixteen years of Jewish settlement there (1651-1667), and attributes this to the fact that the Jewish residents were few in number and could not afford to order tombstones from abroad, while materials and craftsmen for their manufacture locally were lacking. The same would be true of the Jews in Jamaica, as, indeed, of the first generation of English settlers as a whole; the only surviving pre-1672 stone in the island commemorates the wife and infant child of a Governor.

Most of the seventeenth- and eighteenth-century tombstones in Jamaica were massive slabs of white or blue marble or blue slate, manufactured in Britain. Typical were the instructions left in his will dated 21 February 1722 by Isaac Henriques Alvin, who directed that his executors should 'as soon as conveniently can be after my decease purchase in Great Britain three new large marble tombstones of dark blue colour and of a good thickness to be sent to Jamaica to cover three graves, to wit the grave of Abraham Henriques Alvin deceased, the grave of Hester Henrique Alvin deceased and the other to cover my grave' (See nos. 14 and 16. Hester's stone, if it ever arrived in Jamaica, has not survived. Tombstones shipped from Europe were, of course, liable to the hazard of shipwreck or capture at sea). An apparently home-made stone like that of Jacob Torres (no. 91), with the inscription crudely incised on a sandstone block, is exceptional. The only stone at Hunt's Bay bearing a mason's name is the latest (no. 110), which is signed W. Wiltshire, possibly one of the local masons whose names begin to appear on Jamaican tombstones from the early nineteenth century (including the name de Cordova on some Jewish stones).

Only six of the epitaphs at Hunt's Bay mention the deceased's place of residence, either Port Royal or Kingston. After the earthquake some of the Port Royal Jews removed to the new commercial capital at Kingston. A burial ground in Kingston was acquired in 1714, but Kingston Jews continued to use the Hunt's Bay ground to some extent. The bodies, like those from Port Royal, would be taken to Hunt's Bay by boat (see will of Judith Baruh Alvares quoted above).

The Postscript to the St. Iago de la Vega Gazette (Spanish Town) of 28 July - 4 August 1810 had the following account of a ceremony at Hunt's Bay:

[1] Emmanuel, I.S.: Precious Stones of the Jews of Curaçao, New York, 1957.

> Monday being the day appointed for the laying of a foundation stone of a Churchyard at Hunt's Bay for the Portuguese Jews of Port Royal, the Union Lodge No. 257, Provincial No. 1 and United Civilians No. 7 19, assembled at Port Royal from whence they marched in Masonic order, with the militia band of that town and a concourse of people, then embarked in boats for the destined spot. On their manner to the burial ground attended by the Revs. Joshua Naar, Isaac Lopez and E.M. Gompertz; at the west corner of which, after some religious ceremonies were performed and the 20-22nd verses of Genesis Chapter. 28 were recited by the Rev. Joshua Naar, a silver plate inscribed 'This stone laid by David Jacob Bassan, July 25th, 1810,'was likewise laid. The body proceeded after this to a neighbouring house, where a cold collation prepared for the occasion was partaken of by them and passed the greater part of the day with the utmost conviviality and harmony, in a manner characteristic of the Fraternity.

The account seems to suggest that some extension of the burial ground was intended. Yet, as already stated, only two tombstones of later date than 1810 have been found. Possibly this is connected with the fact that after 1815, when yet another disastrous fire afflicted Port Royal, the already much reduced congregation of Jews in that place was dispersed.

The marked decease in the number of tombstones at Hunt's Bay after 1750 may, then, be partly accounted for by the dwindling numbers of those who used the cemetery. But destruction may also have played a part. Was the additional area acquired in 1736 ever used for burial, or was it later disposed of? Certainly the railway line, constructed in the 1840s, drove straight through it.

כל לב עלי שרה צנועה : הלא יצעק כלב אשה מצרה
בקול [...] יאמר בדמעה : להאי שופרא דקא כלי בעפרא
לא לשוט בארץ לא ודעה : אבל לתור מנוחה לה שמורה
הגומל לכל נפש : [בטל]אורית יחונן את עברה:

KINGSTON

Jews from Port Royal were among the first persons to remove to the new town site at Kingston after the earthquake in 1692, and the migration swelled during the early part of the eighteenth century as Kingston became established as the chief port and commercial centre. A Sephardic synagogue, in Princess Street, was completed in 1750. In 1789 a small Ashkenazi synagogue was consecrated in Orange Street, and in 1837 this was rebuilt to accommodate an increase in the numbers of the congregation due to immigration from England and Germany. Both synagogues were destroyed in a city-wide fire in 1882. In the following years a movement of the complete union of the two congregations broke down, but the great majority did unite, under the title of the Amalgamated Congregation of Israelites. The Amalgamated Congregation erected a new synagogue on the present site at the corner of Duke Street and Charles Street, and the Ashkenazi synagogue at Orange Street was also rebuilt, but both these buildings were in turn destroyed in the Kingston earthquake of 1907. In 1912 the Amalgamate Congregation consecrated the synagogue which now stands on the Duke Street site, and in 1921 the Ashkenazi congregation merged with the Amalgamated under the title, The United Congregation of Israelites.

The Old Kingston Jews' Cemetery

The first burial ground of the Kingston Jews, occupying about two acres was situated between North Street and Charles Street, Love Lane and Mark Lane. The land was acquired in 1714 and the earliest surviving tombstone is dated 1716. In 1880 the grounds were closed for burial. Andrade tells us that in 1913 "the graves were levelled and the tombstones placed in position on the ground and cemented around. Quite a large number however must have been destroyed as only a small portion of both lots now (about 1940) have tombstones". About 1950 the site was sold to a commercial firm and further destruction took place. But a considerable number of intact or partially intact stones were salvaged. More than a hundred have been relaid round the periphery of the present burial ground at Orange Street, and sixty eight in the Memorial Garden adjoining the synagogue in Duke Street.

The burial ground of the United Congregation of Israelites at Orange Street is the only one currently in use. It occupies about three and a half acres, is bounded by Orange Street, Slipe Pen Road, Calabar Road and by buildings. The first plot of land was purchased in the early nineteenth century and the earlier tombs are in the southern part of the enclosure, ranged more or less chronologically in rows running from south to north, beginning in the south west corner. Infants are buried separately on the east side of the ground.

Ashkenazi Cemeteries

The two burial grounds of the former English and German congregation are now derelict. The first cemetery, at Lower Elletson Road, occupied about one acre. It was acquired in 1787, closed for burial in 1880, and found derelict in 1960. Andrade notes Hebrew inscriptions on a number of the stones but does not reproduce them. The second English and German congregation cemetery, NE of the junction of Windward Road and Upper Elletson Road, opened in 1826, closed in 1871 and was found derelict by 1960.

כמטר ישרוף עין המעות ולב יבכה ויספוד מר כתנים
ואיך חיים תמיל ידי פשוטה לרחם להקת דלים מעונים
רגבים נא וגוש עפר יכסו ולוחות עץ ומתכונת לבנים
ראו ראו גבירי דוד ושמעו קציני עם לבושי פז סגנים
דעו כי גם עליכם תעבור כוס ותשתהו כמו שתו זקנים
עדי אלהי ברוב חסדו יקבץ צעירי צאן יעורר הישינים

SPANISH TOWN — PARISH OF ST CATHERINE

Formerly known as St Iago de la Vega, St James of the Plain. This was the principal settlement of Spanish Jamaica and remained the official capital of the British colony until 1872. A Sephardi congregation was formed by migrants from Port Royal in 1692, and land for a synagogue was purchased in 1704. During the eighteenth century the Spanish Town Jewish community was the second largest in the island after Kingston. An Ashkenazi congregation was formed about 1790 and in 1844 united with the Sephardim and became know as the German and Portuguese Synagogue,[1] but during the nineteenth century there was a steady exodus of Jewish families to Kingston (and abroad), and after 1884 the synagogue was closed for regular worship. The building, a replica of Bevis Marks synagogue in London, survived until about 1920. An Ashkenazi synagogue, erected in 1796, was pulled down in 1895, and the land sold. There are three disused burial grounds:

First Beth Haim
S.E. of the junction of White Church Street and Burke Road, which skirts the town on the south. The land was purchased in 1692. The fenced enclosure of about two acres adjoins the farm lands of the District Prison. It is periodically, 'bushed' by prison labour, but otherwise neglected. The surviving tombstones are irregularly spaced and cover only parts of the area. At the time of our survey in 1960, some of them were found displaced from the tombs and some were lying face downward.

Second Beth Haim
On Salt Pond Road opposite the first, was established in the 1790s by the Ashkenazim. The enclosure, 130 x 92 x 136 x 51 ft, is partially surrounded by a brick wall.

Third Burial Ground
Ground about a quarter of an acre in extent, adjoining the site of the former synagogue, S.E. of the junction of Monk Street and Adelaide Street. The surviving tombstones range in date from 1824 to 1886. The ground adjoins the compound of the Parish Poor House and Infirmary.

FALMOUTH — PARISH OF TRELAWNY

This town was founded about 1790 and for much of the nineteenth century most of its retail trade was in the hands of Jewish merchants. The burial ground in Duke Street, c. 124' x 83', was purchased early in the century from Edward Moulton Barrett of Wimpole Street, London, owner of most of the land on which the town was built. Now disused, it is closed to the public and kept in reasonably good repair. Location of stones is given in relation to the SW corner of the cemetery.

Inscription 1340 is taken from Andrade p. 221.

MONTEGO BAY — PARISH OF ST. JAMES

The old burial ground, Union Street.
A congregation was formed here in 1844 and a synagogue was consecrated the following year, but during the latter part of the century the congregation declined, and the synagogue had fallen into disrepair some time before it was destroyed in the hurricane of 1912. A burial ground measuring about 120' x 90', on Union Street was purchased in the eighteenth century, and closed for burials in 1899. Shortly before our first visit in 1958 the ground had been sold to a commercial firm, and only three tombstones were still in place. Interments after 1899 were made in a second burial ground in the area north of the town now mostly occupied by hotels. Inscriptions from this later ground have not been included.

LUCEA — PARISH OF HANOVER

Cressy's Lane
Derelict tombstones in the garden of Glenmore, a private residence on Cressy's Lane.

Jews' Burial Ground
Burial ground adjoining the parish churchyard. A walled enclusure 100 ft x 76 ft, disused and derelict, the gatepost inscribed: "Jews' Burial ground — Lucea 1833". According to Andrade the land was given to the Jewish congregation of Lucea by the parish vestry in 1830. In 1846 the assembly voted £60 towards the building of a Mater House.

Inscription 1411 is taken from Institute of Jamaica manuscript (1947).

SAVANNA-LA-MAR — PARISH OF WESTMORELAND

A few tombstones partially buried in the yard or garden of a private dwelling, 22 Beckford Street, are the only visible remnant of the eighteenth century burial ground, an area of about two acres. Joseph Ezekias Da Silva in his will dated 1768, bequeathed £100 for an enclosing wall and iron gates, and portions of the wall and gate were still standing in the 1930's. The whole area now appears to be occupied by the shacks and cultivations of squatters.

Nos 1420 and 1421 have Hebrew inscriptions which were not transcribed.

[1] The correspondence of Aaron Lopez, merchant of Newport R I (Commerce of Rhode Island, Massachusetts Hist. Soc. Collections 7th Series vol 9-10) includes several letters from Abraham Lopez of Savanna-la-Mar. On 7 April 1767 the latter writes: 'My wife died 26th of last month, after giving birth to a daughter — leaving me with 9 small children'. Aaron Lopez' factor in Jamaica, a Yankee skipper called Benjamin Wright, appears to have been based chiefly on Savanna-la-Mar during the years 1768-1773.

LACOVIA — PARISH OF ST ELIZABETH

Tombstones, partially buried, on the property of Mrs Estrella Robinson, behind a small shop opposite the school house on the main road. Lacovia, now a small village, was in 1723 designated the capital of St Elizabeth Parish, and for half a century shared this honour with the town of Black River, the Assize Courts and Vestry Meetings being held alternately in each. Edward Long, History of Jamaica (1774) describes Lacovia as 'mostly inhabited by Jews'.

Tombstones 1425-1428 and 1431 have Hebrew inscriptions which were not transcribed. Tombstones 1432 and 1433 are taken from Andrade p. 213-214.

APPENDICES

Concordance of Names

The concordance is based on all names appearing in the inscription headings. Each name-element is concorded separately, Nunes Vaz, for example appears once under Nunes and once under Vaz. Prefixes are ignored. Variant spellings are grouped together where the difference is purely orthographic, or cross referenced otherwise. Within each name the headings are sorted by year of death, which is shown on the left of the line. Headings where the year of death is unknown are given before the other headings.

ספר זה, היוצא לאור לאחר פטירתו של ר"ד ברנט, מתייחד בתכנו ובזכות פעלו של מחברו. הספר הוא לא רק יד ושם לאלה שהלכו לעולמם בארץ רחוקה; תכנו של הספר מעיד על עצמו: הוא ספרם של ספוני טמוני חול, שפרטי חייהם נרשמו בשורות מעט בעברית ובלועזית, שקיפלו בחייהם יזמה ותעוזה כצאצאיהם של אנוסים וכיהודים. כיהודים הם הלכו ונטמנו לעולמם.

לספר ייחוד נוסף, וחברו בו מחשבה ומעשה. ראשיתו בפועל רישום שבו הוחל עוד במאה שעברה על-ידי ד"ה לאורנס-ארצ'ר (D.H. Lawrence-Archer) והמשכו בידי פיליפ רייט (Philip Wright) (1910-1975). אלא שבדיקתו של הרישום, השלמתו ועריכתו מחדש, הוא מעשהו של ריצ'רד דוד ברנט (1909-1986). הוא שהכפיל ושילש למעשה את מספר רישומי המצבות שנתגלו לו באי. פלא הוא כיצד נשתמרו מצבות אלה באי הידוע בסערות עוקרות הרים ומשברות סלעים ושוטפות הכול.

מאות שנות חיי אדם מקופלות בכתובות מצבה קצרות, שנעשו לעתים ביד לא אמונה. המעט החקוק בהן הוא גם סיפור תולדות ההתיישבות היהודית באי זה שבים הקאריבי, בשעריו של העולם החדש; הוא סיפור יזמתם של אמיצי לב שביקשו לבנות עולם לעצמם ועמו גם לבנות גשר בין העולם הישן לעולם החדש. מצבות אלה הן לעתים המקור ההיסטורי היחיד, לשון אחר: העדות היחידה על פעלם וקיומם של האנשים ששמותיהם חקוקים בהן. מכאן נובע העניין במקור היסטורי מיוחד במינו זה, המצטרף לכלל המקורות של העבר היהודי.

להבאתו של הספר לדפוס פעלו ג'והן קרטיס (John Curtis), עמיתו של המחבר בעבודתם במוזיאון הבריטי בלונדון, ורעייתו של המחבר ברברה ג' ברנט (Barbara J. Barnett). בבדיקת כתב-היד ובהעתקתו עסק מר אורון יפה. מכון בן-צבי נטל על עצמו להיות האמפיטריון והאכסניה למפעל חשוב זה. לא רק אהבה והערכה למחבר ולפעלו שימשו להם בדאגתם שהספר יראה אור. הספר הוא בבחינת יד גם לרוחב דעתו של ר"ד ברנט, שנודע בכתרו האחד כארכיאולוג, שחפר בשורה של תלים בארצות המזרח הקרוב וביון, ושימש גם כמשמר עתיקות במוזיאון הבריטי. כתרו האחר, אותו נשא בגאווה, היה חקר תולדות יהדות ספרד והפזורה הספרדית-הפורטוגאלית שלאחר הגירוש. בשני עולמות אלה חזר ובנה בעברם: כתובות על חרסים ומצבות היו לו לתוכן חיים; מצבות קיפלו חיים שלמים של אישים שאת קורות חייהם שיחזר והעמיד בספריו הרבים כבספר זה וכך הקים להם לטמונים יד עולמים.
