For the production of this work, the following deserve special gratitude: Wesley Cullen Davidson and Nancy E. R. Opperman for typing and layout of the charts; Gary Mokotoff, leader in genealogy and creative computerizer, and with Rose Ciecierski of Data Universal, Inc., of Teaneck, NJ, for their diligence in the immense task of computerizing the 50,000-name index; Allan T. Hirsh, Jr., Chairman of Ottenheimer Publishers of Baltimore, avid genealogist, for offering republication of this work. My beloved wife, Louise, gave countless hours of her editorial expertise to proofreading the index. Dr. Jacob R. Marcus, mentor, teacher, and friend, who inspired and endowed my original effort, has graciously yielded the copyright owned by the American Jewish Archives to the publisher of this update edition.

Foreword

In the historian's tool chest there are few utensils more helpful than genealogical tables. Since 1960, when the American Jewish Archives first published Malcolm Stern's AMERICANS OF JEWISH DESCENT, every work dealing with early American Jewish history has utilized it. Scholars have filled footnotes with references to it, popular writers have alluded to it. At least one best seller has been based on it.

The uses of these genealogical charts are manifold: the family researcher seeks American roots. The historian, interested in society, plots the physical and social mobility of people. Changes in family names demonstrate acculturation; intercolonial marriages provide information for the economic historian. Infant mortality, family size and lifespans, and hereditary disease can be traced here. The rise of Jewish communities becomes evident, the interplay of marriage between Jewish natives and Jewish newcomers is documented. Here, most graphically, one can trace the assimilatory effect of intermarriage, and notice, not without irony, the unbroken line that leads from a Polish Jewish immigrant peddler to an American ambassador to one of the Great Powers. There is a sermon and a threnody on every page.

Behind this work lie the heart and soul of a hard-working scholar. Dr. Malcolm H. Stern devoted eleven years to the creation of his original compilation, AMERICANS OF JEWISH DESCENT, that established his reputation as the father of American Jewish genealogy. The growth of interest in the field produced his revised and enlarged FIRST AMERICAN JEWISH FAMILIES. Through patience and perseverance, he has now brought forth this third "update" edition. All hail to him for setting the record straight and for continuing to produce this important reference tool!

Preface

A high school enthusiasm for royal genealogy inoculated me with a virus which became an all-absorbing hobby. After tracing thirteen generations of descendants of Charlemagne, I was well launched on a career of wholesale genealogy. A maturer outgrowth of the hobby arose from a search for a doctoral dissertation in the field of American Jewish History. In June of 1950, I approached the dean of American Jewish historians, my beloved teacher, Professor Jacob Rader Marcus, with a request for a thesis topic. By then Dr. Marcus had created the American Jewish Archives on the Cincinnati campus of Hebrew Union College, and had begun collecting the data on America's Jews. Among his early acquisitions was the large collection of typescript genealogies of Americans of Jewish descent compiled by the late Dr. Walter Max Kraus, and presented to the Archives by his spouse, Marian Nathan Kraus Sandor. Dr. Marcus made this material available to me, and I spent the succeeding eight years revising, correcting, and quadrupling the data in the Kraus-Sandor material. The result was my AMERICANS OF JEWISH DESCENT, published by Dr. Marcus at the Hebrew Union College Press in 1960. This pioneer compendium of American Jewish genealogy announed to the reader: "While every effort has been made to secure accurate data, the very nature and magnitude of the compilation make either completeness or total accuracy impossible of achievement. Additions and corrections will be welcomed..." In the intervening years, many have responded to this invitation. New data has appeared in print. And my own researches in archives, court houses, historical societies, congregational records, and cemetary epitaphs, have been on-going.

In 1978, resultant accumulation of data was published jointly by the American Jewish Archives and the American Jewish Historical Society as a contribution to the American Bicentennial under the title: FIRST AMERICAN JEWISH FAMILIES: 600 GENEALOGIES, 1654–1977.

The genealogist's task is never complete, for new generations are born daily. The growth of interest in family history, made accessible to individuals by the newer technologies of photocopying, microforms, and computers, has brought about this updated edition.

My goal over more than forty years has been to try to compile the genealogies of Jewish families established in the United States and Canada prior to 1840, tracing their descendants wherever possible to the present. The year 1840 was chosen because an estimated 10,000 Jews had settled in America by then. Within the succeeding twenty years, more than 200,000 additional Jews were to immigrate, creating an insurmountable task for one genealogist working alone.

Although the vast majority of today's American Jews descend from later immigrants, I am proud that my work has inspired many who have consulted it to pursue their own roots, to create the growing network of Jewish genealogical societies around the world, to sponsor and conduct seminars, and to produce an ever-increasing bibliography of finding aids. Echoing the words of an ancient rabbinic sage, I can honestly say, "From all my disciples have I learned."

This work makes evident the assimilative power of mixed marriage between Jew and non-Jew. Increasingly, I am consulted by non-Jewish descendants of these pioneers, who take delight in discovering Jewish forebears. Until the beginning of this twentieth century, Jews constituted less than one percent of the American population; consequently many Jews were lost to Judaism through intermarriage. However, this volume clearly shows that many of these families contain individuals still loyal to their ancestral faith. A recent Jewish bride in South Carolina could trace ten generations of her ancestors in this book, all of whom were Jews. That is the miracle!

How To Use This Book

To Trace the Ancestry Of An Individual:

1) Check the Index for the individual whom you seek. This is important as the individual may appear in any of four places: a. On his or her own family chart; b. On the spouse's family chart; c. In the section marked Addenda et Corrigenda, pages 309 to 314; d. In the section marked Update, pages 320 to 341.

2) After locating in the Index the individual you are seeking, look first at any references to pages 309 to 341, as these pages correct information that may appear on the genealogical charts. Note the ancestry supplied in those pages as they invariably lead upward to a forebear who is the connecting link to the genealogical charts. This is usually the first person mentioned for that specific family and the Index will lead you to his or her page among the genealogical charts.

3) Find this forebear on the genealogical chart. Then trace him upward to parents, grandparents, etc. The male line can usually be followed upward to the first known member of the family. Whenever you reach a person marked "q.v." or "vid.," you must turn to the page so indicated to continue that line upward to earlier ancestors.

Reading the Genealogical Charts:

Sources. In the upper left corner of each genealogy will be found the list of Sources. These are the bibliographical or personal sources from which the Compiler derived the information contained on that family tree. For the explanation of abbreviations in the naming of sources see the list of Bibliography and Sources to be found on pages 315–320.

Family Names. Each page is headed by a family name. Roman numerals (I, II, III, etc.) indicate several unrelated families who bear the same name. Arabic numerals in parentheses (1), (2), (3), indicate several pages for one family. The family name heading the page is usually that of the progenitor of the family (or of its first American representative) and of his descendants in the male line. If the female line is continued on that page, her spouse will have his name underlined. All lines descending from an underlined name bear that surname. When an individual changed his name, the adopted name has a double underline, and all descendants bear the new name unless otherwise indicated.

Cross-References. Many of the families in this volume intermarried with other families in the book. Two methods are used to show cross-references to another page: 1) q. v. (quem vide, meaning "which see"). This shows that the spouse appears on the page bearing his or her surname. For example: On page 1, in the chart labelled AARONS I, HANNAH AARONS married ABRAHAM ALEXANDER, JR. Under his name appears the cross-reference indication "q. v.(1)" This means that full data for ABRAHAM ALEXANDER, JR. is to be found on the first page of the ALEXANDER family chart. The second form of cross-reference is indicated by the term "vid." (abbreviation of "vide" = see). This is used when the spouse so indicated appears on a page headed by a different family name. For example: On page 1, in the chart labelled AARONS II, we find AARON married to HENRIETTA LEVY, and under her name, "vid. LYONS III." This means that HENRIETTA does not appear on a LEVY page but will be found on the third of our LYONS genealogies.

ADDENDA ET CORRIGENDA

THIS SECTION CONTAINS DATA WHICH ARRIVED TOO LATE FOR INCLUSION ON THE CHARTS, AS WELL AS CORRECTIONS TO THE CHARTS. ALL ADDITIONS AND CORRECTIONS, WHETHER THEY CONSIST OF A SINGLE LETTER OR ARE MORE EXTENSIVE, ARE UNDERLINED. ITEMS NOT UNDERLINED APPEAR UNCHANGED FROM THE CHARTS AND INCORPORATED HERE TO PROVIDE EASY REFERENCE TO THE CHARTS. THE USER IS URGED TO COMPARE THE DATA IN THIS SECTION WITH THE INDICATED CHARTS.
MISCELLANEOUS ADDITIONS OR CORRECTIONS TO AN INDIVIDUAL CHART ARE SEPARATED BY A BROKEN LINE.
SEVERAL GENERATIONS OF ONE FAMILY ARE INDICATED BY INDENTING FOUR SPACES FOR EACH SUCCEEDING GENERATION. ALL INDIVIDUALS OF THE SAME GENERATION SHARE A COMMON MARGIN OF INDENTATION, AS THE FOLLOWING SCHEME DEMONSTRATES:

PARENTS
    CHILD A
        CHILDREN OF A
            GRANDCHILDREN OF A CHILD B
        CHILD 1 OF B
            CHILDREN OF CHILD 1 OF B
        CHILD 2 OF B
            ETC.

SOURCES FROM WHICH THESE DATA ARE DERIVED ARE LISTED IN PARENTHESES AFTER EACH GROUP OF DATA.
